SALT WATER BUBBLES.

BY HAWSER MARTINGALE.

A SCENE ON THE OCEAN—FEMALE HEROISM.

A number of years have passed away since the occurrence which I am about to relate, took place; but how many strange events, how many scenes of guilt, misery and blood-but never have I recorded on the broad earth, and hardly never been recorded! The history of things past never been, and never can be, written.

The ship Astolfo, belonging to a port in New England, was on her passage from England to Boston, via England, in Havana. On [illegible] the ship was running off under the [illegible] wind to the latitude of 30 degrees North, and longitude [illegible] West, standing to [illegible] the Gulf of the gloom of night [illegible] by the rising sun, the [illegible] on board from a mere [illegible] discovered, on the [illegible] points on the larboard bow. The vessel presented a singular and quite a suspicious appearance. She was lying to, but her sails were clumsily set—some of them were close up and others were fluttering in the wind, with the sheets loose. The yards were braced in different directions, and every thing connected with her appearance showed that some extraordinary circumstance had occurred on board that vessel. Besides those signs of distress, an American ensign was hoisted in the shrouds union down—a sight which, always denoting fear or imminent danger, can never be witnessed by a sailor without emotion.

The Captain of the Astolfo, whose name was Atkins, was immediately called. After surveying the schooner through his perspective glass, he ordered all hands to be summoned, the studding-sails and other light sails to be taken in, and preparations made to lay the main-topsail back. He also ordered the small arms to be got in readiness for service, being ignorant of the cause of the difficulties on board the schooner, but determined to render all the assistance in his power. As the ship approached the schooner, Capt. Atkins was surprised to behold the fluttering of a female garment—and he soon ascertained that there was only two persons on deck—one was a woman, the other a boy, apparently only twelve or fourteen years of age!

Astonished at the circumstance, he ranged alongside, and hove to, with the main-topsail to the mast. He then hailed the schooner, and inquired respecting the cause of her present abandoned condition. The woman, in a tremulous and weak voice, replied, stating that the captain and mate had been murdered—that the pirates were now confined in the forecastle—and in the most urgent language, implored the captain to send assistance promptly on board. It was then remarked that the woman held a pistol in her hand—her dress was in great disorder—and her whole appearance, as well as that of the boy who stood by her side, denoted that some terrible event had occurred.

Captain Atkins ordered the quarter-boat to be lowered and manned, and arming himself with a pistol and a sword, and giving to each of the boat's crew a cutlass, he resolved to visit the schooner himself, and ascertain the meaning of these strange appearances, and to protect and assist the innocent, and to punish or capture the guilty.

In a few minutes the boat was alongside the schooner. Captain Atkins sprang on board followed by his crew—but he at [illegible] deck, he was startled with the [illegible] who had evidently [illegible] shoe through the head. At this [illegible] the woman came towards him and [illegible] her hand, and poured out her feelings [illegible] gratitude for his aid. She was young, [illegible] graceful form, and exceedingly [illegible] notwithstanding that cheeks were deadly pale, and her countenance in great disorder. She had evidently suffered much, for mental agony was stamped on her countenance—her eyes were red with weeping, and she trembled in every limb through nervous excitement.

Captain Atkins was at once convinced that the woman, who had been the wife of Captain Howard, the late master of the schooner, had told him the truth. [illegible] learned that the woman was in [illegible] words confirmed the [illegible] [illegible] were enough to convince [illegible] [illegible] and they were [illegible] [illegible] boarded the ship [illegible] [illegible] the schooner was boarded. The [illegible] courage, almost [illegible] supernatural [illegible] supported her through trials and perils [illegible] either sex would have failed. [illegible] when they seemed to be no longer required.

The boy spoke of some boxes of money which were in the captain's state-room. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WASHINGTON CITY

SATURDAY AUGUST 20, 1842.

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

The speech of Mr. Adams on the veto of the great revenue bill, is the best we have ever seen of this great and good man. Perhaps there never was more embodied in so few words, and so much to the point to be found on record—so clear, so plain and comprehensive that a child may understand him. He grasps the past, the present, and the future, in one view. It will be read with eagerness by all parties.

Toward the Democratic party, Mr. Adams in the speech referred to is respectful, liberal, and friendly—and the approving manner in which he meets out to them well merited praise, for their promptness in lending aid to some of the most important acts of the national legislature, is highly honorable to him and to them. In retrenchment, we believe, they were more active than the Whigs.

If we are not mistaken the Democrats (in which many Whigs united) opposed the tremendous appropriation for the ARMY and NAVY bills, which it appears amounts to $20,000,000!!! This proves the truth of what we have all along affirmed—that honest democrats had no hand in the kitchen Kendall & Co. expeditions. [Something wrong in this matter.]—For the truth of this statement, however, we cannot vouch.

It is now said that the House will agree on a revenue bill, and pass it without the consent of the President. We hope so.

PHILADELPHIA RIOTS.

The late riots in Philadelphia may perhaps open the eyes of the people generally throughout the Union, to this new enemy, called radicals, alias levellers. Their savage manner of warfare with clubs and stones, beating human bodies without mercy, in defiance of reason or law, is no joke.

The first day (Monday) there was a mixture of half-grown men and boys, native and foreigners, black and white, to the amount of several thousands.

The whites—the lowest and most abandoned miscreants, without anything human in them but the shape, pressed onward in such numbers as to block up the streets, uttering the most horrid oaths and imprecations, yelling like wild beasts, and foaming with rage and fury, soon put the colored people to flight, after beating and maiming numbers, and destroying most of their property, in spite of the mayor, citizens and police!!!

After remaining masters of the city from an early hour in the day, till midnight, they retired by the light of the fires they had kindled. This is a fine picture of the "spread of christianity."

What would the heathen have said of those pious missionaries, and the contemptable hypocrites who send them out to "civilize and christianize" them—had they popped into the city during this grand specimen of gospel-spreading? They would have shrank in agony from such savage demons, and say "YOU TEACH US?" Would you make us such Christians as these? There is no reasoning like facts!

But the ensuing day of the riots, Tuesday, throws still more light upon this subject, and proves the reckless brutality of those blood thirsty assassins, called levellers, and their utter disregard of the civil authority.

From the Saturday Courier of the same date.

"STILL FURTHER PARTICULARS.—During all Tuesday, immense crowds were assembled in various quarters of the city and districts. A number of blacks, flying from the scene of danger into the country, were attacked by Irish laborers on the Schuylkill and severely beaten.—This disgraceful outrage was communicated to the Sheriff, who immediately despatched a force of sixty men, distinguished by a green ribbon tied in the button-hole of the coat. These attempted to suppress the riot in this quarter, but were met by a mob of brutal wretches, numbering at one time upwards of one thousand, and were compelled to retreat from so superior a force. The Sheriff's posse were driven from the ground, and returned in much disorder—hotly pursued. The Sheriff then made a requistion for the military, to aid the civil authorities in restoring and maintaining the peace. The troops assembled at 3 o'clock and held themselves in readiness thoughout the night, but fortunately their services were not required. Councils met in the course of the day and appointed a committee of three from each body with full power to take such measures, in conjunction with the Mayor, as should, effectually put an end to the disgraceful riot. The sum of $5000 was placed at their disposal."

Our friend of the Globe and Baltimore Sun-man will be glad to hear this. It is said several of the civil officers were severely hurt. This is a sufficient warning for all parties to be prepared for the coming contest with these literal brutes, whom the Globe calls the people, and Amos calls "honest democracy." They are thus described in the same paper.

"A large number of whites have been committed to prison, in default of the heavy bail required of them, for the part they have taken in the riots.—We have the names of over twenty of them, but they are, for the most part, from the lowest dregs of society, totally unworthy of being even named in the columns of a newspaper. They will be amply and deservedly punished. Their vulgar ignorance, brutal passions, and inveterate prejudices have been strengthened and lashed into madness by the cause of those smooth tongued hypocrites— those deceitful and designing knaves, abolitionists"—Ib.

No excuse can palliate the act, and resistance of the laws.

Will the Courier be so kind to explain why those same Irish, so often meet each other in deadly strife? Hundreds of those may be seen at once on the public works, where there are no abolitionists or colored people in the case, wounding and knocking each others brains out, as one would a mad dog—indeed they can be compared to nothing else. We defy any one to point out a parallel in the most savage nations, of such ungovernable rage and fury, not only toward their fellow man, but their own "dear" countrymen.

Alas! alas! That men, sprung from the purest blood of the human race, generous and hospitable to a fault, faithful in friendship, upright and honest to a proverb, witty, humorous, sensible and good natured—respectful in their manners, with a fortitude which no calamity can subdue, and would suffer death before they would BETRAY EVEN AN ENEMY who trust their lives to them. Such is the character of the very poorest class of Irish in Ireland. But no sooner do this same class arrive in this "land of liberty," as they say, than they become politicians, insolent, overbearing, riotous, quarrelsome, beat and maltreat each other, and murder their best friend, all for love of liberty—become dictators in politics, knock down and carry every thing at elections by dint of cudgel, driving free Americans from the polls, and set the laws of the country at defiance. Our laws are the very fountain of liberty. THERE CAN BE NO LIBERTY WITHOUT LAW! AND WHY? BECAUSE THERE WOULD BE NO TOLERATION. ☞ Were it not that the law says "No man shall be molested IN HIS LIFE, LIMB, HOUSE, HOME, GOODS AND CHATTLES, nor in his political or religious opinions, which is the FOUNDATION and the TOP-STONE of liberty—there could be no human security of equal rights—therefore, where there is no law there is no liberty. But you might as well attempt to stop the Falls of Niagara with your finger, as to convince these madmen that by our laws every man has the liberty to vote for whom he pleases. Not so. Those anarchists will ☞FORCE☜ every voter to vote as he does by "knock down" arguments and bloodshed. How long would liberty stand in this country, if they had their way? Not one hour. They were not made for LIBERTY—they were not made for PEACE. Never!!!!

It chills one's blood to hear them blaspheming and cursing the first men in our government! "Webster is a d—d rascal, and such a member of Congress is a d—d rascal." Of Gov. King they say "I'd smash his d—d brains out." This kind of language is only used by assassins, and we think they are better qualified to pull hemp than to make laws.

If they don't like our country or our laws, or Mr. Webster, or Mr. any body else, they can take the less of them. Why do they come here—nobody sent for them.

That they are put up to this insolence and treason by our own traitors, we have no doubt. Well, they will "see what they shall see."

That human butchery is the object of these levellers, (many of them now holding respectable places in society,) in engaging these bloody monsters who are daily flocking over to this country, there is no question. What say you, gentlemen of the Washington Globe and Baltimore Sun. "Ars't it?"

NATIVE AMERICAN SOCIETIES—FOREIGNERS, AND THE HUNTRESS.

"But, Mrs. Royall, you used to be for us, and now you run us down." True. Every one recollects the part we took in favor of foreigners, and finally, the native paper and society in this city went down. We despise the OPPRESSOR, whether American or foreigner, and are willing—and so is every honest, liberal minded American, to put all foreigners upon an equal footing with ourselves. But since you begin to use threats, &c. &c. of conquering this country, we wash our hands of you, and the lawless party whom you have HONORED with your choice. We do not go for civil war and bloodshed.

Meantime, should the scale of fortune again turn, and ye should need a friend, ye will know where to find one.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE 27TH CONGRESS—UNITED STATES SENATE.

Hon. Wm. L. Dayton. This gentleman has been elected to the United States Senate from New Jersey, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Hon. Samuel Southard. Judge D. is a very young man, perhaps the youngest man in the Senate, and has quite an imposing appearance. His face is round, rather full, remarkably fair and smooth, with features of the most perfect symmetry, and a deep classical forehead. His eye is a light blue, mild and steady, and speaks volumes of meekness and benevolence. His countenance is open and intelligent, and has a magic sweetness, extremely fascinating. In his manners Senator D. is affable and pleasing, and bespeaks at once the scholar and the gentleman.

LADIES.

Mrs. Edwards. Mrs. E is the lady of Hon. John C. Edwards, a member of the House of Representatives in Congress from Missouri.

We have been waiting some time to have a better view of Mrs. E. having merely had a glimpse of her as she was seated in the gallery of the House, but to our great pain and mortification, she has left the city.

Mrs. E. appeared to be quite a young and very beautiful woman, tall, and rather a stout figure. Her face is round and full, and exceedingly fair, with features of uncommon beauty and sweetness. Her eye is a dark hazel, brilliant as the dew drops and has great expression. Her countenance is meek, chaste and modest, and her manner is dignified and lady-like.

For the sake of Mrs Edwards, a most amiable man, with whom we have been long acquainted, we are sorry our interview with his lady happened to be so limited, particularly as she is a western lady. But we hope to meet again.

☞Not exactly, Mr. Star.☜ Formerly our Sally did all, and much more, than his friend spoke of, and her [and Mrs. R.] raised up a housefull of orphans—amongst them a little pious come-by-chance missionary, whose life Sally and Dr. Lindsay saved. These are grown, and repay the kindness they received when poor and friendless, and our Sally now lives in ease and independence at her own home, which she has, or might do so, but she will never desert her FRIEND [Mrs. R.]—not her mistress. She is our equal, and in many things our superior.

Jeff [that's me] does all the drudgery now. Sally [uncommon for her] rather looked grave about Simon says 'the gentleman had better annex him to some lassy of his own family.

THE REVENUE IN THE SENATE.

"Mr. BENTON spoke to the merits of the measure itself, and the manner of its effectuation. His speech will strike deeply into the minds of the people. Mr. WALKER assailed the bill by a proposition to recommit with instructions."—Globe.

"Mr. Benton" and "effectuation." There is a word for Mr. Webster. "His speech will strike deeply into the minds of the people." He had struck the minds of the people rather too deep long before, by keeping up a standing army of "Tom Benton" men in this city, under the pretence of erecting "durable public buildings," which, and other affairs we wot of, amounts to the round sum of twenty-two millions, as we shall show anon.

HON. WM. S. ARCHER, of the U. S. Senate.

This gentleman has been so unfortunate as to draw down upon him the displeasure of the GLOBE. Now we shall have the tug of war when Greek meets Greek, &c.

We have this moment had a peep at the subject. It is all about foreigners, and as our "dear friend" Mr. Blair is the levellers organ, he is highly displeased that Mr. Archer should interfere.

CONGRESS.

The committee of 13 had reported when our paper went to press, but we had not read it.

Look here, papa, said a little girl passing up Main street, here is vegetable candy. Yes, my love, that is quite correct. Then there is mineral candy, too. Oh no, my love. Yes there is. You are mistaken. No I am not—I am sure I have bought rock candy.

A Pleasant School Book.—A young gentleman stepped into a store and said he wanted a 'Young Man's Companion.' 'Well sir,' said the bookseller, 'here's my daughter.'

Hallo, boy, have you any father?—'No, I have none—but my brother has two or three.'

A man in Missouri planted some beans late one afternoon, and next morning they were up—thanks to the hens.

When you see a fop kissing another man's wife, say quit that.

A charitable divine, for the benefit of the county in which he resided, commenced a large causeway, and as he was one day overlooking the work, a certain noble man passed by.—'Well, doctor,' said he, notwithstanding your pains and charity, I don't take this to be the highway to heaven.'

'Very true, my lord,' replied the doctor, for if it had, I should have wondered to meet your lordship here.'

The Polite Butcher. In the Bristol market a lady having her hand upon a joint of veal, said 'I think Mr. Johnson the veal is not quite so white as usual.' 'Put on your glove, madam,' replied the dealer, 'and you will think differently.' It may be needless to remark that veal was ordered home without another word of objection.

'Pete, how does your father hamper his sheep to prevent their jumping over fence?

'Oh, that is easy enough. He cuts a hole through one leg, and sticks the other through it, and then puts the other through that for a pin.

'Are you guilty or not guilty?' said the clerk of the Arraigns to an Irish prisoner. 'An' shure, now,' answered Pat, 'what are you put there for but to find out?'

'You whistle well,' said a minister of the gospel to a witty urchin whom he found whistling by the road side, on a bright Sabbath morning.

'Well, I reckon I might, if I'd try.'

'I suppose you can sing too, can't be you?'

'Not exackly—but sister Sal can beat all nater in that line.

'You have learned to pray, have you not.

'Oh, yes.'

'And can you tell me who made those oxen?' inquired the minister, desirous of inculcating the first principles of his mission.

'Why, daddy, to be sure.

'No, my little fellow—the Creator made them, and all the world,' returned the minister, apparently grieved at the ignorance of the boy.

'Darnation, don't you think I know? I guess they were created bulls, and daddy made them oxen.

'Well, my lad, how many commandments there are?'

Eleven.'

'Eleven! why what is the eleventh one?"

'Mind your own business.'

The minister came to the conclusion that there was nothing green about him.

'Martha dost thou love me?' asked a Quaker youth, of one at whose shrine his heart's holiest feelings had been offered up.

'Why, Seth, answered she, we are commanded to love one another, are we not?'

'Aye, Martha—but dost thee regard me with that feeling the world calls love?'

'I hardly know what to tell thee, Seth. I have greatly feared that my heart was an erring one. I have tried to bestow my love on all—but I may have some times thought, perhaps, that thee was getting rather more than thy share."

Look not mournfully into the past—it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present—it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear, and with a manly heart.

Wit in Chains.—A prisoner being placed at the bar of the Mayor's Court, Philadelphia, and being called upon to plead to an indictment for Larceny, was told by the Clerk to hold up his RIGHT hand. The man immediately held up his LEFT hand. Hold up your RIGHT hand, said the Clerk. 'Please your honor,' said the culprit, still keeping his left hand up, 'I am left handed, and sure my RIGHT hand is on my LEFT shoulder.'

A very worthy, though not particularly erudite insurer, was conversing with a friend the other day about a ship they had mutually insured. 'I strongly suspect—said the friend, 'that our ship is in jeopardy.' 'The d——l she is?' exclaimed the Solomon: 'well, I'm glad she's got into some port at last.'

Comforts.—Cold Comfort—Ice in August.

Doubtful Comfort—to pay a note with borrowed money.

Domestic Comfort—A pleasant wife, good natured children and warm puddings.

A Usurer's Comfort—The edistress of others.

Editorial Comfort—Pay in advance.

SONG.

Away—away my gallant bark,
The waves are white and high,
And fast the long becalmed clouds
Are stealing in the sky,
The merry breeze which wafts them on
And chafes the billow's spray,
Will guide thee in thy watery flight—
My gallant bark, away!

Now like the sea birds showy plumes,
Are spread thy winged sails,
To soar above the mountain waves,
And scoop their glassy vales—
And, like the bird, you'll calmly rest,
Thy azure journey o'er
The shadow of thy folded wings
Upon the sunny shore.

Away—away my gallant bark,
Across the billow's foam—
I leave awhile for ocean's strife,
The quiet haunts of home—
The green fields of my father land,
For many a stormy bay—
The blazing hearth for beacon light,
My gallant bark, away!

SONG.

BY G. P. JAMES, ESQ.

Oh ask me not! To days long gone
Those pleasure sounds belong.
Some memory wakes with every tone,
I dare not sing that song.

I learned it first in boyhood's hours,
In youth's exulting May,
And sung it oft amidst the flowers
That strew life's early way.

When those days fled, and manhood's prime.
Brought care and strife along.
Still in repose of eventime,
I've sooth'd me with that song.

To ears that now no more can hear,
To spirits that have fled—
I've sung that song to those most dear.
Deep-loved and early dead.

Boyhood's glad sport—youth's vanished dream.
And manhood's calmer hours
Come with each note on memory's stream,
A wreath of withered flowers.

And one, who heeds my voice no more—
To him those notes belong!
Even now my eyes are running o'er,
How can I sing that song.

A romatic young lady in Philadelphia, not long since, by accident fell in the river, and was well nigh drowned ere she was rescued from the water. She was borne home senseless. On coming to, her heart was so full of gratitude to the preserver of her life, that she assured her family that she would willingly marry him who rescued her. Impossible" said her father. 'Why? is he already married?—'No.' 'Was it not that interesting young man who lives in our neighborhood?' 'Dear me, no,—it was a New Foundland dog?!? Her hopes were blighted.

INSULTING FEMALES.

I have a story to relate which may serve as an antidote to some of our gallants who insult ladies. Some years ago, a number of this kind of creatures infested St. George Church, in 4 h street, Philadelphia, and would form a line near a square in length, either to trip up or otherwise insult the females. One sabbath evening, a young gentleman, who commonly wore a plain coat, but for convenience, on this evening was in full fashion, stepped up to a well dressed female, and asked permission to see her home. 'Thank you kindly,' said she, and they walked along side by side until they got in Sassafras street, near 5 h, when she looked him full in the face, and said, 'Mr. Smith, I thank you for your kindness, I have no more need of your protection,' and, behold, she was black! being the daughter of his mothers washer-woman! —Ledger.

SHERWOOD'S ELECTRO MAGNETIC REMEDIES FOR, CHRONIC DISEASES

the class of Hypetrophy, including the forms Scrofula, viz: Tubercula Consumption, Dyspepsia, Chronic Disease of the Liver, of the Heart of the Spleen, of the Kidneys, of the Spine, White Swellings, Scrofulous Sore Eyes, Scald Head, King' Evil, Leucorrhœa, Chlorosis, Menorrhagia or Females complaints.

These are but different modifications of the same disease, arising from the same cause, distinguished by the same diagnosis, and curable by the same remedies. Their common cause is an irregular action of the Electro-Galvanic forces in the system; they may all be detected by pressure upon the sides of the vertebræ and glands of the neck which elicits the Electro-Galvanic symptom, and they may be cured by these Electro-magnetic remedies: The latter are accompanied by a compendious medical treatise, explaining the principles of the discovery upon which they are founded, stating the manner in which they are to be applied. In this work Dr. Sherwood demonstrates the fact that every part of the human body, together with every particle of animate and inanimate matter, either in a negative or positive state of electricity, and that every motion in all matter, whether the largest masses or in the smallest particles, is produced by the attracting and repelling forces of this universal principle. The morbid action which produces disease of the organs or the [illegible] to be occasioned by the undue preponderance of one of these forces in the system and [illegible] restore health by subduing this irregular action to an equilibrium. By this means the [illegible] of the disease are eradicated, and a permanent cure effected, even in cases where all hope of relief from other sources is abandoned. PROPOSALS

FOR

PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION

The Authentic Report of the Controversie Discussion, that took place in the City of Dublin, in the year 1827, between the Rev THOMAS MAGUIRE, and the Rev R. T. P. POPE.

This celebrated work, the most remarkable controversal discussion of modern times, having gone through twenty-one editions in England and Ireland, where it is still read with extraordinary avidity, and in the United States passed through three editions, all of which are exhausted to the last copy; and the demand for it from all quarters, Catholic and Protestant, being still very great, it is proposed to re-publish at in Weekly Numbers at such a price as it put it within the reach of all without distressing any.

Those in the City of N. York, who wish the work, will be served by leaving their names with the publisher, John Doyle 294, Pearl Street, those at a distance can have it regularly mailed to them, by remitting one dollar in a post-paid letter.

Agents:—Mr. Patrick Conolly, 118 Ann St. Boston;—Henry Mc Keon, Willings Alley, Philadelphia;—Mr. John Farnonn Utica. N. Y.;—Mr. T Mathew McLeod Georgetown, D. C.; Mr Peter Haynes. Savannah, Geo.—and the office of the U. S Catholic Miscellany, Charleston, S. C.

It is a well known fact that this grea controversy has converted more sectaries the Catholic Church in England and Ireland than any other work whatever; andges' also been the happy means of bringing hato numbers to the true faith in the United Satess It is therefore hoped that every sincere Catholic will and his aid, by putting down his name, to prevent so valuable a work from being out of print, more particularly when for his subscription, he will receive the work monthly.

JAMES GIVEN has the honor to inform the Public in general, and his friends in particular, that he just opened a Dress Store in that noted building on Penn Avenue, near the Railroad Depot, formerly occupied by Mr. Dent, as a furniture store and latterly by the office of the Native American, where he will be happy to see and accommodate all who may favor will Their custom, with every article a Grocery.

NEW GUIDE TO WASHINGTON.

by G. Watterston, esq—The above work is just published, with a frontispiece of the Statue of washington, by Greenough, and contains every thing relating to the history of washington, of its progress and improvements since its origin the citizen and stranger, and is a perfect guide to else that a stranger would be desirous to make himself acquainted with, while a sojourner in it or a resident abroad. It gives a true picture of washington, though not a mere picture book—all the institutions, works of art, &c., are briefly but satisfactorily described. It sketches its usages customs, manners, and religious and moral tone, of its society—public buildings, literary, social, and other institutions—its location, the condition of the legal and medical professions—its growth and character of its resident population—gives an abstract of its municipal regulations, civil and criminal courts—duties of the principal executive officers of the General Government, of the committees of Congress, and a great variety of useful local; and general information which a resident as well as a stranger would be pleased to posses Among the descriptions of the societies which have been organized in washington, are two at considerable length, and of great interest—one, of the National Institution, and the other, of the Society Odd Fellows.

☞The work is printed in a neat and handsome ostavo, of over 200 pages, and for sale at the bookstore of R. FARNHAM, corner of 11th street and Pennsylvania, avenue.

SHERWOOD'S ELECTRO MAGNETIC REMEDIES FOR CHRONIC DISEASES the class of Hypetrophy, including the forms Scrofula, viz: Tubercula Consumption, Dyspepsia, Chronic Disease of the Liver, of the Heart of the Spleen, of the Kidneys, of the Spine, White Swellings, Scrofulous Sore Eyes, Scald Head, King' Evil, Leucorrhœa; Chlorosis, Menorrhagia or Females complaints.

These are but different modifications of the same disease, arising from the same cause, distinguished by the same diagnosis, and curable by the same remedies. Their common cause is an irregular action of the Electro-Galvanic forces in the system; they may all be detected by pressure upon the sides of the vertebræ and glands of the neck which elicits the Electro-Galvanic symptom, and they may be cured by these Electro-magnetic remedies: The latter are accompanied by a compendious medical treatise, explaining the principle of the discovery upon which they are founded, stating the manner in which they are to be applied In this work Dr. Sherwood demonstrates the fact that every part of the human body, together with every particle of animate and inanimate matter either in a negative or positive state of electro and that every motion, in all matter, whether in the largest masses or in the smallest particles, is produced by the attracting and repelling force of this universal principle. The morbid action which produces disease of the organs or limbs, nerves to be occasioned by the undue preponderance of one of these forces in the system and his remedies restore health by subduing this irregular action to an equilibrium. By this means the very seeds of the disease are eradicated; and a permanent cure effected, even in cases where all hope of relief from other sources is abandoned. The Electro Magnetic remedies are the only remedies applicable to this prevailing class of diseases and they never disappoint the confidence reposed in them the symptoms of the class of diseases to which they are applicable can be discovered, under the directions contained in the work which accompanies them without the aid of a physician and can be used with perfect safety and success without inconvenience.
